

Boutique Nouveau

Our resident expert Dipika Makwana takes a look at the latest trends to take the interior world by storm.

Interior designer and beyond columnist Dipika Makwana looks at the new stylish but affordable trends for 2010.

Welcome to a new year of fabulous interiors from all around the world. This season we celebrate new beginnings and interior trends for 2010.

In our current climate of doom and gloom, it is not surprising that artists are creating inspiring products to brighten up our homes. Making the most of our living space is all about choice and personal taste: people aspire to create a space that is stylish and which reflects their lifestyle. Quality doesn't have to mean expense. With careful planning and investment buying you can make the most of your home.

Graphic prints and retro designs are highlighted this year, and designer Neisha Crosland has created eclectic patterns that work in many different forms from wallpaper and fabrics, to fashion products. Fashion designers such as Vivienne Westwood, Philip Treacy and Armani have all developed their own interior ranges, and it is not surprising to see how our British homes have been inspired by this boutique style.

Glamour is back and designer Aiveen Daley has modernised vintage furniture to create one-off collectable pieces that are inspired by modern British tailoring, using traditional techniques such as pleating, ruching and buttoning, with stunning results. Her work is seen in Liberty's, Paul Smith and placed on some of most reputable yachts in Monaco, as well as being featured in luxury homes and hotels around the world. This elegant style makes a statement and helps to cross the lines between function and art in a creative way.

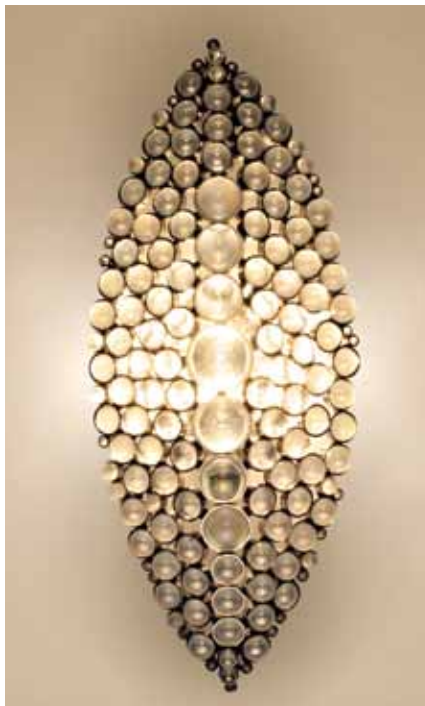

If decadence and high style is what you are searching for, lighting can be a great talking point and can highlight different areas to create an ambience. The Emily Todhunter collection has managed to combine traditional and contemporary design to achieve sophisticated glamour. Effortless beauty can also be captured in one single object - the vase, from designer Claire Coles.
